Protect Yourself and Your Money!!

You're in the middle of your day and you receive a call. A collection agency is asking you to pay for a service or product they claim you acquired long ago. They're insistent on you paying immediately, in some cases, they threaten with arrests or jail. Despite having doubts about the call, you proceed and give them your personal information. It seemed legitimate, all of it, but then you wonder, maybe it's a scam? Or what about the alleged "family member in jail" scam! They've got a million and it's up to you to protect yourself and your assets!

Everyone knows checking your bank account, paying bills, and saving for a rainy day are vital to your financial well-being. But how should you deal with scammers who come after you and your wallet?

Routinely checking your credit report is a good way to ensure you are on the right track. However, many other resources are available to help you protect yourself and your money every day.

Beware of the Tell Tale Signs of Fraud

Please be aware of the "Tell Tale" signs of fraud!! Every day, scammers develop more sophisticated and convincing schemes, but these tricks usually share something in common - urgency and veiled threats. Scammers find ways to intimidate victims by calling them posing as government representatives and always ask for personal information or some kind of payment. Below are a few steps to consider when you receive a call you believe is a scam:

- Hang up! Don't engage the scammer!
 - Don't send money
 - Do not share any personal information
 - Report to Cold Spring/Richmond Police Department
 - Report it to the Federal Trade Commission (FTC)
- You can report someone falsely claiming to be from the government, a business or other entity, or if you have privacy concerns to the Federal Trade Commission.
